Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

Claims 9 and 15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the enablement requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to enable one skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and/or use the invention.

The “cradle like member”, etc., is not adequately disclosed.

Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The scope of claim 1 is ambiguous. Initially, “A cord tensioner for a guide cord”, etc., is recited, suggesting that only the cord tensioner is being claimed. However, later in the claim, there are positive recitations to the combination of the cord and blind, etc., such as “the cord tensioner being attached to the upper or lower rail”. For examination purposes, it is assumed that the combination is being recited. Claim 19 recites longitudinally extending cord grooves while claim 20, which depends from claim 19, recites a pulley. The recitation of longitudinal grooves on a pulley renders these claims indefinite.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

Art Unit: 3634

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Langelier in view of Ozols.

In Fig. 3 of Langelier, see upper rail 1, lower rail 2, and blind 3 and cords ABCD. See also tension springs 6. Ozols discloses a compression spring to be used in place of a tension spring (abstract) since it has certain well known advantages, such as not stretching to the point of failure. In view of this teaching, it would have been obvious to modify Langelier whereby his tension spring are replaced by compression spring arrangements such as taught by Ozols. Ozols discloses the housing 36, abutment 38 and the lip of housing 36, and attachment member 44. Claim 19 is addressed as best understood in light of it's indefiniteness discussed above.

Claims 1-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Langelier in view of Haines.

Haines discloses a compression spring arrangement, Figs. 10,11, which are attached to the end of guide cords. It would have been obvious to replace the terminal tension springs of Langelier with the terminal compression springs of Haines. Such would be an obvious substitution of equivalent parts as well as being made obvious by the advantages inherent to compression springs, as discussed above. Claim 19 is addressed as best understood in light of it's
